ADVERTISEMENTS.

MUTUAL ASSURANCE WITH MODERATE PREMIUMS.

SCOTTISH PROVIDENT INSTITUTION, 6 ST. ANDREW SQUARE, EDINBURGH.

THIS SOCIETY differs in its principles from other Offices.

INSTEAD of charging rates higher than are necessary, and returning the excess in the shape of periodical Bonuses, it gives from the first as large an Assurance as the Premiums will with safety bear—reserving the Whole Surplus for those Members (a majority of the whole) who have lived long enough to secure the Common Fund from loss.

A Policy of £1200 to £1250 may thus at most ages be had for the Premium usually charged for (with profits) £1000 only ; while, by reserving the surplus, large additions have been given to the Policies which participate.

At last division of Profits, Policies for £1000 sharing a first time were increased to sums varying from £1180 to £1300 or more, and others to £1400, £1700, and upwards.

Farther additions will be made at the end of the present year. The steady progress of the Business, and the rapid INCREASE of the FUNDS due (in great measure to the low rate of Expenses), give good reason to anticipate very favourable results.

Examples of Premiums for £100 at Death—With Profits.

AGE.	25	30*	35	40†	45	50
DURING LIFE, - - -	£1 18 0	£2 1 6	£2 6 10	£2 14 9	£3 5 9	£4 1 7
21 PAYMENTS, - - -	2 12 6	2 15 4	3 0 2	3 7 5	3 17 6	4 12 1

* A person of 30 may secure £1000 at death by a yearly payment, during life, of £20 15s, which would generally elsewhere secure £800 only, instead of £1000. Or he may secure the same sum of £1000 by twenty-one yearly payments of £27 13s 4d, being thus free of payment after age 50.

† At age 40 the Premium ceasing at 60 is, for £1000, £33 14s 2d, being about the same as most Offices require during the whole term of life. Before that time the Policy will have shared in at least one division of profits.

The FUNDS (increased in year by £341,000) are now £6,000,000.

Only Two Offices in the Kingdom, both older, have as large a Fund.

The INCREASE of the FUNDS in last five years exceeds that of any other Office.

The SOCIETY has taken a leading part in the removal of restrictions and grounds of challenge. The rules relating to foreign residence, revival of Policies, early payment of claims, etc., are specially liberal.

The SURRENDER VALUES (given in accordance with an original fixed Table) “compare favourably with those of other first-class Offices.”

REPORTS, containing TABLES of RATES, may be had on application.

COLLINS' SERIES OF ENGLISH DICTIONARIES.

Sixty-Third Thousand.

s. d.

The Library Dictionary of the English Language, Etymological, Derivative, Explanatory, Pronouncing, and Synonymous. Founded on the labours of Johnson, Walker, Webster, Worcester, etc.; with an Appendix. Illustrated by 1000 Engravings on Wood. Quarter-bound morocco, 11s; medium 8vo, half-bound calf, 12s 6d; cloth extra, - - - - - 9 0

"This 'Library Dictionary' is the best work of the kind which we as yet possess."—Morning Post. "Its definitions of words common and uncommon are full and precise, and to the body of the work are added very compact vocabularies of foreign words and phrases, Scottish words, abbreviations, and much else that is welcome and not often to be met with."—Examiner.

"It is the cheapest of the complete dictionaries of the day."—Educational Reporter.

The Cabinet Dictionary of the English Language, Etymological, Derivative, Explanatory, and Pronouncing. 750 Engravings, square post 8vo, quarter bound morocco, 5s 6d; half-bound calf, 7s 6d; cloth extra, 990 pages, - 4 0

"It would be difficult to find, within so narrow a compass, so well arranged and comprehensive a dictionary as this."—Scotsman.

Ninetieth Thousand.

The Globe Dictionary of the English Language, Etymological, Derivative, Explanatory, and Pronouncing. 500 Engravings, crown 8vo, half-bound Persian, 3s 6d; half-bound calf, 4s 6d; cloth extra, 776 pages, - - - 2 6

"Among the many useful books that of late have issued from the British press, we have not met one more worthy of general commendation and approval than the one before us. Carefully and accurately compiled, and abounding in appropriate illustrations, it seems admirably fitted for either school or general use."—The National Educational Gazette.

Five Hundredth and Fiftieth Thousand.

The National Pronouncing Dictionary of the English Language, on the basis of Webster, Worcester, Johnson, and Walker; with an Appendix. 250 Illustrations, demy 18mo, 448 pages, quarter-bound morocco, 1s 6d; roan, limp, red edges, 2s; cloth lettered, - - - - - 1 0

"We have examined this school-book with great care, and can cordially commend it to all in quest of a small and accurate dictionary. The pronunciation of each word is clearly indicated by the phonetic system of spelling. Its definitions are always accurate."—Nonconformist.

One Million Six Hundredth Thousand.

The Pocket Pronouncing Dictionary of the English Language, on the basis of Webster, Worcester, Johnson, and Walker; with an Appendix. 250 Illustrations, royal 32mo, 320 pages, roan, limp, red edges, 1s; cloth lettered, 0 6

"Marvel of cheapness and excellence."—Daily Review.

Sixtieth Thousand.

Dictionary of the Derivations of the English Language, in which each Word is traced to its Primary Root. Forming a Text-Book of Etymology. With Definitions, and the Pronunciation of each Word. 400 pages, 18mo, quarter-bound roan, 1s 6d; cloth, - - - - - 1 0

"To literary aspirants and students we can honestly recommend it."—School Board Chronicle. "More complete than Dr Sullivan's similar work, in that it takes account of non-classical as well as classical sources, the handbook now before us deserves a hearty welcome."—Educational Reporter.

Thirtieth Thousand.

Dictionary of Synonyms of the English Language. 368 pages. demy 18mo, quarter-bound roan, 1s 6d; cloth lettered, - - - - - 1 0

"DICTIONARIES OF DERIVATIONS AND SYNONYMS.—These are two complete little works, and we cordially commend them to the attention of students and teachers."—School Board Chronicle.

Dictionary of Scientific Terms, Etymological, Derivative, Explanatory, and Pronouncing. Edited by WM. ROSSITER. Containing 14,000 References, and illustrated by upwards of 600 Woodcut Engravings. Post 8vo, half-bound calf, 5s; cloth, - - - - - 3 6

Intended as a guide to the understanding of our popular scientific literature. To make the book convenient for ready use, a selection of the most commonly used and most important words has been made. At the same time, accuracy with brevity has been specially aimed at, and the number of the references is the best evidence of its range and conciseness.

The General Town Mission.

This Mission was organised in 1846, with the object of extending the knowledge of Divine truth among the inhabitants of Dalkeith and vicinity by employing a missionary, whose duty it is to visit, and read the Scriptures. Meetings are held in the Douglas Memorial Hall, Tait Street, which was built and presented to the Society in 1887 by George Douglas, Esq., Eskbank. The affairs of the Mission are conducted by a Committee, composed of the ministers of the town, being subscribers, and members of the various religious denominations.

Missionary—Mr James Fleming.

Treasurer—Mr Robert Wight, Draper. Secretary—Mr David Jerdan.

Whitehill Mission.

This Mission is in connection with Buccleuch Street U.P. Church, and is carried on by a student from the United Presbyterian Theological Hall, who, during the summer months, devotes a good deal of time to visitation, both in Whitehill and Cousland, and in the winter spends the Saturdays in either place, and also conducts services on the Sabbaths. A singing class is conducted at Whitehill each week. The student also conducts a meeting at Adam's Row, Millerhill, on alternate Sundays with that of Cousland, at 2.30 p.m. A Band of Hope is also held weekly, at Millerhill.

Tract Society.

This Society was originated in 1837, since which time the tracts of the Scottish Monthly Tract Society have been regularly circulated in the town and neighbourhood. It is supported by voluntary contributions, and has at present about 30 distributors, who circulate about 1700 tracts monthly. The distributors meet in the Class-Room of the Congregational Church on the first Wednesday of each month at 6.30 p.m.

Secretary and Treasurer—Mr Robert Wight, South Street.

Indigent Sick Society.

This Society, instituted 1808, bestows its benefactions in cases which do not properly come within the scope of parochial aid. It is maintained by contributions made annually.

George Douglas, President.
Wm. Porteous, Secretary. George Gray, Treasurer.

The Corn Exchange

Was opened in August 1854. It is one of the most commodious structures of the kind in Scotland, and was erected from plans by D. Cousin, Esq., architect, Edinburgh, at a cost of £3800. Maintained by poll-tax paid by entrants, rent of stalls, &c. The great hall is 172 feet in length by 50 feet wide, and about 45 feet high. The management is carried on by a committee of the Burgh Commissioners.

William Millar, National Bank, Treasurer for Dalkeith Burgh Commissioners.
George Wilson, Superintendent.

Corn Market.

The Weekly Grain Market for the sale of Wheat, Oats, Barley, Peas, and Beans is held on Thursdays in the Corn Exchange. The grain is pitched in bulk, and all purchases are paid prompt cash. Business opens by the ringing of a bell at 11.45, when the sale of oats commences. The market for wheat and beans opens at 12; and barley at 12-15.

FUNERAL LETTERS

PRINTED ON THE SHORTEST NOTICE,

AT

JOHN CARMENT'S,

67 HIGH STREET, DALKEITH.

Editorial Notice.

IN issuing the Fourth Annual Edition of Carment's Directory, we have to tender our sincere thanks for the largely increased support the publication received during the past year, the circulation of which has reached a point hitherto unattained by any publication of the kind in the district.

Encouraged by this, we resolved to still further enhance the value of our already useful work. The outcome of this has been the addition of a Professions' and Trades' Directory for Dalkeith. As a means of reference, this will, we doubt not, prove most useful.

Our best thanks are also due to our friends and correspondents who have always been so ready to assist us, and to the Editors of the various newspapers and journals who have so favourably reviewed our work in the past.

THOMAS KEMP,
Editor Carment's Directory.

DESCRIPTION OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

TOWN HALL, BRUSSELS.

The Hôtel de Ville of Brussels is the most interesting edifice in Brussels and one of the noblest and most beautiful buildings in Belgium. The building dates from the fifteenth century, and is 178 feet long, 165 feet broad, the handsome tower being 350 feet high.

THE GLASGOW INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.

If all things continue to go as well as they are doing the Glasgow International Exhibition will be opened in May, 1888. It is hoped that the Queen may grace the opening by coming to the city. The Fine Arts Committee have now issued their prospectuses applicable to the sale and loan sections. Her Majesty the Queen is patron, and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales is honorary president. The corresponding members include Mr. L. Alma-Tadema and Mr. Hamo Thornycroft, and the committee comprises many of our leading citizens, the Hon. Sir James King, Lord Provost, being Chairman of the Executive Council. The Art Section is to include sculpture (original works in marble, bronze, etc., terra-cotta, wax, and plaster of paris), oil paintings, water-colour drawings, works in black and white (charcoal, crayon, and sepia drawings, etc.), engravings and etchings (steel and copper engravings, lithographs, etc.), architectural drawings and models, and objects illustrative of Scottish history and archaeology. The Art Galleries are to be ten in number, occupying an area equal to 3200 square yards, and affording about 2450 lineal feet of hanging space. It is proposed that objects illustrative of Scottish history and archaeology shall be placed in a separate building specially constructed for the purpose. Electric light will be used throughout the Exhibition, and the mode of its application in the Fine Art Galleries will obviate the risks incidental, under other conditions, to the use of artificial lights. It may be added that, while detailed arrangements are still only in prospect, it is contemplated that music, both choral and orchestral, shall enter largely into the daily life of the Exhibition. It is to be hoped that nothing will occur to mar the success of an Exhibition to which the citizens generally look forward with great interest, and which its promoters are earnestly seeking to carry forward on the highest as well as the most popular lines.

THE BERNESE OBERLAND.

The Highlands of Berne include the most celebrated peaks in the middle of Switzerland, among which are the Wetterhorn, Schreckhorn, Finsteraarhorn, Viecherhorn, Eiger, Mönch, Jungfrau, etc. These mountains, seen on a clear day, say from the terrace in front of the Cathedral at Berne, form a panorama which can never be forgotten; while their great height does not appear too overwhelming, although they are mostly from 12,000 to 14,000 feet high. The old town of Berne itself is well worth seeing, the mediæval architecture being most curious and interesting.

ST. PETER'S, ROME.

While we give the palm to the Colosseum as the most wonderful ancient building in Europe, and to the Alhambra as the most wonderful mediæval building, there is no doubt that the Cathedral of St. Peter in Rome, although not the most extensive modern building in Europe, is by far the most magnificent. On entering the Piazza Rusticucci, opposite the façade of St. Peter's, one is struck with the immense space, broken only by the silver spray of its glittering fountains and by the obelisk in the centre. The height of the whole obelisk is 132 feet, but of the shaft only 83 feet. On each side of the piazza are magnificent colonnades having 284 columns, and they enclose an area of 777 feet. The height of St. Peter's from the pavement to the top of the dome is 426 feet, and the whole building is so immense that if it were possible St. Paul's in London could easily be accommodated inside of it. The cost of the main building alone is said to have been above ten millions sterling, and the annual cost for repairs is £6300. Mendelssohn writes:—"The building of St. Peter's surpasses all powers of description. It appears to me like some great work of nature, a forest, a mass of rocks, or something similar, for I never can realise the idea that it is the work of man. You strive to distinguish the ceiling as little as the canopy of heaven. You lose your way in St. Peter's; you take a walk in it and ramble till you are quite tired. When divine service is performed and chaunted there you are not aware of it till you come quite close. The angels in the Baptistry are enormous giants, the doves colossal birds of prey. You lose all sense of measurement with the eye or proportion, and yet who does not feel his heart expand when standing under the dome and gazing up to it?" "The interior bursts upon our astonished gaze resplendent in light, magnificence, and beauty beyond all that imagination can conceive. Its apparent smallness of size, however, mingled some degree of surprise and even disappointment with my admiration, but as I walked slowly up its long nave, empanelled with the rarest and richest marbles, and adorned with every art of sculpture and taste, and caught through the lofty arches opening views of chapels and tombs and altars of surpassing splendour, I felt that it was indeed unparalleled in beauty, in magnitude, in magnificence, and one of the noblest and most wonderful of the works of man" (Eaton's "Rome").

ST. PETER'S ROME

F.O.S.

THIS historic castle is built on a rock 22 yards from the shore, at the south-east end of the lake of Geneva, and is close to the watering place called Montreux. Who has not read Byron's poem, "The Prisoner of Chillon?" This gloomy old castle dates from the tenth century, and is one of the most striking objects on the banks of the lake.

Chillon! thy prison is a holy place,
And thy sad floor an altar—for 'twas trod
Until his very steps have left a trace,
Worn, as if the cold pavement were a sod,
By Bonivard!—may none those marks efface,
For they appeal from tyranny to God.

KITCHEN GARDENER'S CALENDAR.

JANUARY.—This is the month for preparing early vegetables, whether by the hot-bed or in the natural ground. If you have any lettuce plants in frames, let them, whenever the weather is fine, enjoy the open air, and even in wet weather do not exclude the air altogether; but should the frost be rigorous, let them be closely covered up. If the weather be open, asparagus, radishes, carrots, spinage, parsley, &c., for early use may be put in preparation this month. The soil must be prepared for various crops, such as peas and beans; some kinds of the former may be sown in a favourable state of the weather.

*Holidays are marked thus*.*

FEBRUARY.—Dig and trench vacant ground, and prepare especially such ground as may be required for early crops. Choose southwardly exposed or sheltered situations for peas, beans, &c., and continue to sow them in favourable weather. Cut early kidney potatoes for seed, and start their growth by placing them in hot-beds. Care must be taken properly to protect and train cucumbers and melons. Asparagus to be forced. Mushroom beds may be formed, and the old ones carefully defended. In the beginning, or at any time during this month, you may make a hot-bed for early kidney beans. Sow the different kinds of small salading, such as cresses, mustard, radish, and lettuce, once a week, if the weather be open. Cauliflower plants, in frames, should have the free air every mild day, by taking the glasses entirely off. Cauliflower seed may be sown. Early cabbage, if strong in growth, should now be transplanted. Late cabbage may be sown.

MARCH begins on THURSDAY—31 Days.

MARCH.—Attend to the state of what has been planted in the two previous months. Transplant cauliflower into rich ground. Sow brocoli for early crops. Transplant cabbages of all kinds into the place where they are to remain. Transplant and sow lettuce; sow savoy; sow spinage to succeed that formerly sown; repeat the sowing once a fortnight; sow onions and leeks; keep up the supply of radishes; sow turnips, carrots, and parsnips; sow mint, garlic, scallions, &c. Plant early potatoes in open weather. Transplant sweet herbs intended for kitchen use. Plant young strawberries, and dress strawberry beds. Graft apples, pears, &c.

MAY begins on Tuesday—31 Days.

MAY.—Plant out cucumbers under hand-glasses. Plant now a full crop of kidney beans to succeed those of last month; and in wet days put in the principal crop of runners. Asparagus ought to be fit this month to be cut for use. In moist weather transplant such lettuces as were sown the two former months. Keep clean the beds of turnips, carrots, parsnips, onions, &c., and thin such as require it. Transplant spring sown cabbage and savoy for autumn use, also red cabbage. Plant out towards the middle or end of this month the gourds and pumpkins sown in April. Plant out tomatoes or love apples. Carrot seed may still be sown in succession; such as are sown in this month will be very acceptable.

JUNE begins on FRIDAY—30 Days.

JUNE.—Supply well the cucumbers in frames with fresh air and water. Transplant celery into trenches, to remain to blanch. Sow a full crop of turnips for autumn use; transplant leeks; keep up the crops of peas and beans; plant cabbages for use in autumn and winter; gather mint and other aromatic herbs for drying towards the end of the month. Transplant leeks, which in general will be of a proper size for this purpose, towards the middle or end of this month. Let a quantity of the brocoli plants, which were raised in March or April, be planted, finally to remain in rows two feet asunder. Transplant endive. Thin young wall fruit when required. Plant out seedling flowers, and cuttings of wallflowers, carnations, &c. Top peas and beans to assist the filling of the pods.

JULY.—Prepare ground for the autumn and winter crops. Plant your principal crops of savoys and winter cabbages. Transplant brocoli, and sow seed for a late spring crop. Plant late crops of kidney beans. Sow onions to stand the winter, but this not before the end of the month. About the middle of the month you may sow some carrots, which will come into use at Michaelmas, and continue good till the spring; the same remarks apply to turnips. Thin, transplant, and sow lettuces, winter spinage, and several kinds of radishes, particularly the turnip rooted. As celery is a water plant, and requires to grow quick, it should be kept alive by wet. Lift all winter onions that are full grown, and prepare mushroom spawn.

AUGUST begins on Wednesday—31 Days.

AUGUST.—Sow early and other cabbage seed to produce plants for the service of next summer ; sow also red cabbage, and Dutch and cabbage lettuces on warm borders, for winter use ; finish planting savoy ; continue to sow onions, carrots, radishes, and cauliflowers ; transplant celery into the trenches for blanching ; continue to sow in succession several sorts of small salad seeds, such as mustard and cresses. If your cucumbers in the open ground stunt, curl, or canker, lay little bits of new tile under them. Gather herbs for distillation, such as the mints, penny-royal, &c. Plant lavender, rosemary, sage, hyssop, and other aromatic herbs. Take particular care now of ripening melons, and in dry weather give the advancing crops water.

SEPTEMBER begins on Saturday—30 Days.

SEPTEMBER.—This is the season for providing mushroom spawn, and dung for the mushroom beds. The spawn is found chiefly in dry old rotten dunghills; it is a white fibrous substance spreading in the dung. The spawn must be kept from wet. Plant lettuces in frames for winter use; transplant cauliflowers. The young cabbage plants which were sown the first or second week of August for an early crop next summer and autumn should be planted into nursery beds. Continue to plant celery in trenches, and earth up the plants as they advance. Continue to gather seeds. Cardoons, which will now have made considerable progress, must be earthed up for blanching, their leaves being previously tied up carefully and regularly. Cover asparagus with manure. Plant cuttings of gooseberries, currants, raspberries, and strawberries. Remove hardy evergreens, shrubs, &c.

OCTOBER begins on Monday—31 Days.

OCTOBER.—Towards the end of this month, you may plant beans for an early crop the succeeding summer. The Mazagan bean will stand the winter best. Transplant lettuces for the winter service. Towards the end of this month plant some of the strongest cabbages in the place where they are to remain for early use next summer. Plant out early in this month any aromatic plants wanted, such as thyme, hyssop, sage, &c. Earth up celery on dry days. Clean water spinach. Collect and preserve flower seeds, and transplant rooted cuttings and layers. Dress wall trees and standards; and remove green-house plants to their winter shelter.

NOVEMBER begins on Thursday—30 Days.

NOVEMBER.—Get everything out of the land this month which is not intended to stand during the winter. In the middle, or towards the end of this month, is a proper season to plant early beans, to succeed such as may have been planted in October. The same direction may be applied to peas. Broccoli may be laid down, and their heads pointed to the north, especially the high growing kinds. Where the asparagus beds were not cleaned and earthed during the last month, it must now be done. Artichokes should now receive their winter dressing. The beginning of this month you should take up carrots and other roots to be preserved in sand, &c., for the use of the kitchen during the winter months. After the middle, or towards the latter end of this month, according to the state of the weather, will be the time to put fires in the hot-houses, particularly in the evenings.

DECEMBER begins on Saturday—31 Days.

DECEMBER.—Remove decayed leaves from the cauliflower plants, and let the plants have free air during the day. If the weather be dry and open, radishes and carrots, for an early crop, may be sown. Keep up the succession of peas; the kind called hotspur is one of the best for this season. Plant beans now, if you have not planted them earlier. Attend carefully to have the mushroom beds defended from frost and wet. Take advantage of the first day, if not frosty, to earth up such of the celery as may be in a fit state for it; and see that the plants are pretty dry before you begin earthing. Carefully examine fruit which has been laid up in the house.

THIS "sea of ice" near Chamounix is one of the most remarkable glaciers in Switzerland. Experiments made upon it show that it moves steadily onwards year by year—most quickly in the centre at the surface, and more slowly lower down and at the sides. The same rule holds good with rivers.

This glacier, which is about four and a half miles long, and from one-half mile to one and a quarter miles broad, is composed of three streams of ice, each branching from a different gorge high up on the Mont Blanc range. These streams, primarily composed of snow, descend gradually during the summer time by their own weight and by the heat in the lower valleys melting the ice below. The snow thus by pressure becomes ice, and is quite as transparent as the ice formed on rivers and lakes. One can hardly believe that these glaciers are sometimes 500 to 1,000 feet deep. The rules at Chamounix with regard to guides are very strict. Visitors are not allowed to venture the ascent of any of the mountains by themselves, and to go to the top of Mont Blanc and back costs about £12 to £15 at the least for one person.

In some glaciers grottos are cut—that is, at the lower end a tunnel is hewn in the ice about seven feet high by four feet wide, extending straight back into the glacier 50 to 100 feet. Owing to the beautiful blue transparency of the ice, the place is quite light; and when the sun is shining the pale pink, green, and blue tints are more wonderful than can be described here. These grottos gradually melt away as the summer advances, and have to be re-cut each spring. See Professor Forbes' scientific book on the subject of glaciers.

PROBABLE WEATHER FOR 1888.

The dates given here denote when bad weather may be expected.
The intervals denote cessation of bad weather.

JANUARY.—Between 3rd and 5th, and 6th and 8th, very stormy and snow or rain—between 10th and 12th, stormy—between 12th and 14th, gales and snow or rain—between 19th and 22nd, strong winds and snow or rain—between 27th and 29th, very stormy and wet. Mean temperature, 35°. Evaporation is least this month.

FEBRUARY.—Between 2nd and 4th and 5th and 7th, stormy and snow or rain—between 8th and 10th, stormy and wet—between 10th and 12th, gales and snow or rain—between 13th and 15th and 16th and 18th, very stormy and wet—between 23rd and 25th, stormy and wet—between 28th and 1st March, gales and snow or rain. Mean temperature, 37°.

MARCH.—Between 4th and 6th and 7th and 9th, strong wind and some rain—between 13th and 15th and 15th and 17th, gales and rain—between 26th and 22nd and 22nd and 24th, very stormy and some rain—between 28th and 30th, gales and rain—between 31st and 2nd April, stormy, probably some rain. In this month the dew point rises only to 4°.

APRIL.—Between 3rd and 5th, wind and rain—between 10th and 12th, strong winds and rain—18th and 20th and 20th and 22nd, stormy and some rain—between 25th and 27th, strong winds and rain—between 27th and 29th, some wind. Temperature about 13° higher than in January.

MAY.—Between 1st and 3rd, some wind and rain—between 8th and 10th, some wind and rain—between 10th and 12th, thunder and rain—between 16th and 19th, stormy—between 22nd and 24th, stormy and some rain—between 25th and 27th, gales and rain—between 28th and 30th, stormy and some rain—between 30th and 1st June, very stormy and some rain. The atmosphere attains its greatest dryness this month. Frosty nights are not uncommon, and do great injury to the fruit blossoms.

JUNE.—Between 2nd and 4th, some wind and rain—between 5th and 7th, possibly some thunder and rain—between 10th and 12th and 12th and 14th, strong winds and some rain, probably thunder—between 17th and 19th, wind and rain—between 21st and 23rd and 24th and 26th, thunder, storms, and rain. Mean temperature, 57°.

JULY.—Between 1st and 3rd, some wind and rain—between 8th and 10th and 10th and 12th, stormy and some rain—between 16th and 18th, stormy and some rain—between 22nd and 24th, strong winds and rain—between 29th and 31st, stormy. The warmest month in the year. Mean temperature is 25° above January. When the thermometer rises to 80°, thunder almost invariably follows.

AUGUST.—Between 6th and 8th, stormy and some rain, possibly thunder—between 12th and 14th and 15th and 17th, very stormy and some rain—between 18th and 20th, some wind and rain—between 20th and 22nd, strong winds and rain—between 24th and 26th, some wind and rain. Owing to the great radiation of heat from the earth, the temperature of this month is not much reduced.

SEPTEMBER.—Between 4th and 6th and 7th and 9th, some wind and rain—between 12th and 14th, stormy—between 14th and 16th, some wind and rain—between 20th and 22nd, gales and rain—between 22nd and 24th, stormy—between 27th and 30th, strong winds and rain. The equinoctial gales occur about the end of this month or the beginning of next. Mean temperature, 55°.

OCTOBER.—Between 5th and 7th, and 7th and 8th, gales and rain—between 10th and 12th and 12th and 14th, stormy and some rain—between 19th and 21st, gales and rain—between 27th and 29th, some wind and rain. The thermometer is for five or six nights this month below freezing point. Mean temperature, 47°.

NOVEMBER.—Between 2nd and 4th and 5th and 7th, very strong winds and rain—between 8th and 10th, strong winds and rain—between 15th and 17th and 17th and 19th, very stormy and wet—between 28th and 30th, some wind and rain. The thermometer is for about 13 nights this month below freezing point. Fogs are prevalent.

DECEMBER.—Between 2nd and 4th and 5th and 7th, gales and snow or rain—between 10th and 12th and 12th and 13th, very stormy and snow or rain—between 19th and 22nd, very stormy—between 26th and 28th, strong winds and snow or rain. The frosts in this month are seldom of long continuance.

THIS huge rock pyramid, near Zermatt, is 14,705 feet high, and is perhaps the most curious and most inaccessible mountain in Switzerland. It was climbed for the first time in 1865, and although iron railings and ropes have been fixed over the most difficult places, still it is a stiff 'un at any time.

Zermatt is a small village, composed of 500 inhabitants, and has three or four large hotels, accommodating perhaps 1,000 visitors, so that for six months of the year there are more English than natives. The great attraction is the Matterhorn, and to get a sight of it free from mist people will wait for days. This view is taken from a small lake, 3,000 feet above Zermatt, and 6,300 feet below the Matterhorn. From Zermatt, which lies in the valley in front, this huge rock appears much more majestic and sharp, as the edge to the right is very narrow, the extreme top not being above a foot or two in breadth. There is often a curious fringe of mist to the right of this edge, exactly like a horse's mane.

Visitors are not allowed to remain on top above 20 minutes or so, in case of being frostbitten, and on account of the rarity of the atmosphere rendering breathing very painful.

Owing to some bad accidents having happened, great care is taken during the ascent, although one lady is said to have made the ascent annually for some years back. Mrs. Fred. Burnaby's "High Alps in Winter," and Whymper's "Scrambles among the Alps" are most interesting books, and will give the general reader a good idea of the subject and the difficulties to be surmounted.

THE MATTERHORN.

THE town of Heidelberg, with 25,000 inhabitants, is one of the most interesting and delightful towns in Germany, not only on account of its beautiful situation and its famous university, but also on account of its historic past. The buildings which remind us perhaps more than anything else of its former splendour, are the ruins of its Schloss or castle. Next to the Alhambra in Spain, these are the most extensive mediæval ruins in Europe. After a visitor has sailed up the Rhine, and seen on almost every cliff and projecting crag a ruined castle, the monotony becomes too much, and one is inclined to think that this is a ruined country; but on further thought it is wonderful that a country like Germany, composed at one time of petty states, each carrying on an almost continual war with the surrounding states, should be so united and powerful at the present time; and why Germany can compete with us successfully while she is burdened with such an immense standing army is one of those things "no fellow can understand." Mais revenons à nos moutons.

This famous castle has a most extensive view, and is situated 670 feet above the sea level, and 330 feet above the river Neckar, which flows almost at its base. It was built in the fourteenth century, and although burnt and rebuilt since then, was struck by lightning in 1764 and reduced to its present ruinous state.

The walls are of vast extent, and form the most magnificent ruins in Germany: while the façade in the inner courtyard is the finest known piece of Renaissance architecture.

The great Tun of Heidelberg, a monster cask capable of holding 49,000 gallons of wine, is also inside the castle.

These castles in ruins show, more than mere reading of history, the state of the country a few centuries ago, and show also the solid workmanship of the older generations.

The little building on the top of the hill is a restaurant called the Molkencur, from which there is a magnificent view, not only of its Schloss and its gardens, and the town of Heidelberg, but of the surrounding country.

RULE TO FIND THE WEIGHT OF CATTLE.

Take the girth behind the shoulder, and the length from the fore part of the shoulder blade along the back to the bone at the tail, which is in a vertical line with the buttock, both in feet. Multiply the square of the girth by 5 times its length, and divide by 21: the quotient is the weight, nearly, of the four quarters, in imperial stones of 14 lbs. avoirdupois.

 The Publishers will feel obliged by notices of alterations in the date of any of the foregoing Fairs and Fasts being transmitted them for correction in future publications, and beg to state that, whilst doing their utmost to keep the List of Fairs correct, they cannot guarantee its absolute accuracy.

Victoria, R.I.: Her Life and Reign. By Dr. MACAULAY,

Author of "Sea Pictures," "Luther Anecdotes," "Gordon Anecdotes," etc. With Five Portraits of the Queen, and Sixty Engravings by Edward Whymper and others. Small 4to, 10s. 6d. cloth, gilt edges.

"The author's endeavour has been to recall those qualities in the personal character of the Queen and the incidents in her life which have most endeared her to her people during the last fifty years; and he has also aimed at giving a brief but comprehensive summary of the great public movements of the time. In both efforts he seems to have succeeded to admiration. Dr. Macaulay writes en pleine connaissance de cause. He has witnessed the events which he narrates, and been brought face to face with the personages whom he portrays. He has the liveliest ocular remembrance of 'Fifty years since.'"—Illustrated London News.

The Gates of Eden: A Story of Endeavour.
Second Edition.

'The subject of Miss Swan's "Gates of Eden" is one which demands, and receives from her hand, a skilful treatment. John Bethune rears his motherless boys in accordance with a preconceived plan. The elder is to be a minister, the younger is to follow the plough. Circumstances seem to favour his scheme; for the future minister has, it appears, the advantage in appearance, in manners, and in ability. But the real truth is different. The depth of character and the best mental gifts really belong to the latter. How the young man, conscious of his power, yet stedfastly walks along the appointed path till he is free to choose, and how, once free, he enters on his own way and overcomes all its difficulties, is very well told in these pages. We have not often seen a better portraiture than is that of the two brothers. Miss Swan is too skilful to make the weaker of the two a mere foil to the stronger. He, too, with all his faults, has virtues of his own, and the reader is glad to see them reaching their true development before the story is finished. The episode of the recovery of Willie Lorraine, a repentant prodigal, is full of pathos; as is also the love-story of Mary Campbell. The "Gates of Eden" is a worthy successor to the author's "Aldersyde."—Spectator.

'A distinct success. . . . We follow the career of twin brothers through the book—Sandy and Jamie Bethune. Sandy, apparently getting all the brains, is sent to St. Andrews to study, and his conceits and fine talk on his visits home are humorously described. Then we see him transformed into the Rev. Alexander Bethune of Lochbroom. Jamie seems fit only for the harrows and the loom at first, but Aunt Susan always sees deeper than this, and we read with interest the story of his endeavour to rise to higher things. His character is well drawn, the earnest, noble soul following God's leading.'—British Weekly.

'The "Gates of Eden" is, like most of its predecessors, a homely tale of Scottish life and manners. The homely dialect is given with admirable fidelity, and there is much truthful delineation of character.'—Scotsman.

'The underlying conception—that of a contrast between two brothers, the one brilliant, clever, and superficial, but needing stern discipline before the real strength of his nature can be evoked; the other modest, unselfish, but earnest and indomitable—is strongly grasped from the first, and is wrought out with such power and consistency as to hold the reader's attention by a kind of spell. The book is one which everybody can read with pleasure, and from which many will profit.'—Scottish Leader.

'One of the most dramatically rendered scenes of the book is that in which the death of old Peter Bethune is described. If the author had never written anything else, this part of the story would justify her claim to the place in the front rank of our most gifted literary artists.'—Northern Ensign.

'A happy note is struck at the very outset of the "Gates of Eden," and the quality of the good beginning is maintained throughout. . . . The best of all the stories that we have yet received from the pen of its accomplished authoress.'—Kilmarnock Standard.

'Remarkably beautiful, noble in spirit, rich in pathos, strong in the triumph of an earnest purposeful life.'—Daily Mail.

Edinburgh, Past and Present. By J. B. Gillies.

With Notes of the County, Historical, Descriptive, and Scientific.

By Rev. JAMES S. MILL, FLORA MASSON, and Dr. GEIKIE.

“Edinburgh, Past and Present,” by J. B. Gillies, is a handsome book—a sweet, dainty, and most pleasure-giving memorial of Edinburgh. The letterpress is first rate. Mr. Gillies is a skilled writer, and he knows Edinburgh History. In this volume, in a style at once simple and graphic, he links the past with the present; and without any parade of antiquarian lore he tells all, or nearly all, that is worth repeating regarding the public and domestic history of the capital and its famous buildings and institutions.—The Daily Review.

Mr. J. B. Gillies, if we mistake not, is a writer who already has attained a large share of popularity by his descriptions of storied scenes in the Modern Athens. Under this impression we may, perhaps, congratulate the “Benjie” of old upon the handsome appearance of “Edinburgh, Past and Present.” Throughout the two hundred and sixty pages will be found a large number of illustrations, very beautifully executed, and adding no inconsiderable interest to the spirited text.—The Publisher's Circular.

‘The book cannot be too highly praised.’—The Inverness Courier.

‘Readable from end to end, and in many places extremely amusing.’—St. James's Gazette.

‘The illustrations of the book are gems of the art. No pains have been spared to make the book complete. It is finely and spiritedly written; it is eloquently embellished. Every American visitor of “Old Edinboro” will surely want this charming work.’—Round Lake Journal, U.S.A.

‘A better man than Mr. Gillies, the author of the letterpress, no one could desire as a guide through Old Edinburgh, for no man knows it better. Readers of the famous “Edinburgh Supplement” of the “Graphic” must know his handiwork. The illustrations are the very things one would wish for in such a book.’—Aberdeen Journal.

‘This is a splendidly got up book, both internally and externally. Author and publishers, artist and engraver, printers and binder have all combined to make the work worthy of the subject.’—Kelso Mail.

‘The vignette illustrations interspersed among the letterpress are charming. As a drawing-room book it is highly attractive.’—Spectator.

‘Everything in and about the Old Town of Edinburgh is interesting, and that interest is very much enhanced in the present work by the numerous and well-executed woodcuts which adorn its pages. The author has earned the thanks of his contemporaries by the able manner in which he has woven into his work the most salient points of Edinburgh History. Its style and typography are of that high order which we might expect from a firm of publishers of such repute.’—Western Antiquary.

‘This is an elegantly got up and altogether very interesting volume; and numerous as are the books about Old and New Edinburgh, there is nothing in existence so well adapted to the requirements of the general reader. Mr. Gillies’ coadjutors, who have supplied the Historical, Descriptive, and Scientific notes, have done their parts exceedingly well.’—Aberdeen Free Press.

‘One of those books which should be popular among the crowds who annually flock to the Scottish metropolis. . . . A book which can be taken up at any time, and will seldom be laid down without having given the reader some pleasure and profit. What publishers could do to make the work attractive and successful has been done.’—Glasgow Herald.

The Story of Old Whiddy; or, How Little Doris began to make Her Mark in Life. By ZALA.

Rough, a Clever Dog. A True Story of his Life.
By Mrs. JARVIS.

'Two companion stories for young people, which would make a good present for brother and sister.'—Scotsman.

'Two excellent books for the young, attractively illustrated. The intention of the writers, it may be stated, is not merely to interest their youthful readers, but to induce them to treat with kindness and consideration their faithful, intelligent, four-footed friends. We wish the books every success in this laudable object.'—Border Advertiser.

'The writers of these charming stories are doing great service to the cause which the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals have at heart.'—Haddington Courier.

'"Rough" is a true story of a clever dog, told in a most humorous and taking vein by the author of "The Autobiography of a Robin." She proves that Rough was no ordinary fellow, and makes him tell the story of his wonderful career like the clever dog he is.'—Dundee Courier.

'These are companion volumes which enforce upon children the duty of kindness towards animals, and the publishers deserve credit for the dainty dress in which they appear.'—Dumfries Courier.

'We commend "The Story of Old Whiddy" as a book of rare merit. The story is sure to please the young folks, especially those who are fond of domestic pets. It is not a mere book of pictures—though these are beautiful and plentiful—they are illustrations, and make the narrative more real and vivid.'—Orcadian.

'Handsome little volumes, . . . very pleasantly written, . . . calculated to teach excellent lessons. They will be appreciated by children when more expensive gifts might not be. No parent or friend will regret putting them into the hands of the young folks.'—Brechin Advertiser.

'Wonderful Old Whiddy! Let all the children read his life.'—Weekly Post.

'"Rough" is worthy to be classed with "Rab and his Friends." "Old Whiddy" is also delightful.'—Presbyterian Witness, Halifax.

'Both stories are as graceful and pretty as anything of the kind we have seen for many a long day.'—Manchester Examiner.

'An exceptionally good little story for the nursery library; bairns should learn to know what a dog is.'—Aberdeen Journal.

'Pleasantly and simply written, and containing many picturesque details of family life, both books will be appreciated.'—Scottish Leader.

'Books for very little folks that deserve special notice.'—Newcastle Chronicle.

'If any real dog possessed the accomplishments so amusingly described by Mrs. Jarvis, it must have been a canine genius indeed.'—The Graphic.

'Both books, which are nicely got up, may help to train young people in words of mercy.'—Liverpool Mercury.

'Rough's biography discloses features, incidents, tricks, and traits which are certainly novel and, beyond question, interesting.'—Zoophilist.

'"Old Whiddy" is one of the most charmingly simple pussy-cat stories we have met with. We have been delighted with the pictures.'—Aberdeen Journal.

'Both stories are clever, and are certain to be appreciated by the young people, for whose entertainment they have been designed.'—News Letter, Belfast.

The Shadow of the Hand, and other Sermons.

By Rev. W. A. GRAY, Elgin.

‘Earnest, thoughtful, and scholarly sermons.’—Literary Churchman.

‘A volume of delicate, true, and helpful delineations of certain phases of Christian experience. . . . Conveys a most favourable impression of the original and careful work that is being done for the pulpit by conscientious men.’—Expositor.

‘It is seldom that one meets with such sermons as these coming from Scotland, or, for the matter of that, from England.’—The Churchman.

‘The whole volume of sixteen sermons we can cordially recommend.’—Clergyman's Magazine.

‘We commend the book . . . for its quiet, meditative grace, and its deep feeling for Nature. . . . Maintains a high level of vigorous common sense, and is as much alive to the needs and characteristics of the world of men as to the gentler impressions of the field and sky.’—Homiletic Magazine.

‘A book of thoughtful sermons by a Scotch minister.’—Christian.

‘Exceedingly thoughtful, deeply spiritual and practical.’—Christian World.

‘Discourses of rare excellence. Give evidence of independent and vigorous thought, and are characterized by much freshness and beauty; no striving after originality, and yet we have it.’—N. B. Daily Mail.

‘The thoughts are fresh and vigorous; the arrangement is clear, the tone is devout.’—Primitive Methodist World.

‘Everything is brought to bear upon great principles of the Christian life. Devout, evangelical, and fervent, these are very useful and practical sermons.’—British Quarterly Review.

‘Multiplied evidence of homiletic and expository skill, controlled and held in check throughout by loyal submission to the word of God.’—British and Foreign Evangelical Record.

‘Substantial sermons, which we have read with much pleasure. We delight in their doctrine, tone, and manner. The sermon on “Faith refusing Deliverance” strikes us as a masterpiece; . . . fine specimens of sermons for an educated Christian audience.’—Mr. SPURGEON in Sword and Trowel.

‘Thoughtful, practical, and extremely elegant. . . . The theories handled are taken hold of with power. The language in many places is exceedingly beautiful.’—Presbyterian Messenger.

‘Admirable sermons. Evangelical in sentiment, eminently practical and useful, and abounding in fresh and attractive illustrations.’—United Presbyterian Magazine.

‘The most notable feature of the book is the amount of solid thought in it; next we should mention the sustained and unfailing earnestness of the sermons.’—Christian Leader.

‘Remarkable for their graceful style and literary finish; they have a freshness of thought, a clearness of expression, and a current of pathos that cannot fail to interest.’—Aberdeen Free Press.

‘Since the Rev. John Ker published his single volume of Sermons some years ago, there has been no such suggestive volume given to the press as this.’—Northern Whig, Belfast.

‘Evidently the product of a very thoughtful and cultured mind. . . . Bear the impress of the nineteenth century upon them.’—Belfast Witness.

‘Vigorous, direct, and manly. . . . Sermons that can be read without a sense of impatience or weariness.’—Westmoreland Gazette.

Aldersyde. A Border Story of Seventy Years Ago. By ANNIE S. SWAN.

The Authoress has received the following Autograph Letter from Mr. Gladstone:—

'10 DOWNING STREET,
WHITEHALL, April 16, 1883.

'DEAR MADAM,—I have now read the work which you did me the honour to present to me with a very kind inscription, and I feel obliged to add a line to my formal acknowledgment already sent. I think it beautiful as a work of art, and it must be the fault of a reader if he does not profit by the perusal. Miss Nesbit and Marget will, I hope, long hold their places among the truly living sketches of Scottish character.—I remain, your very faithful and obedient
W. E. GLADSTONE.'

'Sir Walter Scott himself never delineated a character more true to life than Janet Nesbit.'—Stirling Observer.

'Readers who can follow Scotch idioms easily will be moved by the narrative of Janet Nesbit's life. . . . Incidents common enough, but eloquent of character and well told.'—Athenæum.

'Full of quiet power and pathos.'—Academy.

'She has brought us into the presence of a pure and noble nature, and has reminded us that a life of sorrow and disappointments has its deep compensations, and its glorious meaning.'—Literary World.

'If there is anything more noteworthy than another in this cleverly constructed story, it is the vigorous raciness with which the vernacular is employed.'—Haddington Courier.

'A tale of deep interest; it is a work of true genius.'—United Presbyterian Magazine.

'Hurrah! our good Scotch stories, with their dear rough old vernacular, are not going to die out just yet, or, if at all, they are going to die hard.'—S.S. Teachers' Magazine.

'Beautifully conceived and exquisitely written.'—Airdrie Advertiser.

'One of the best Scotch tales that has appeared for many years. . . . A wealth of local colouring and fineness of touch rarely to be met in these days of painfully analytic writing.'—Kilmarnock Herald.

'A book we must read through at a sitting. It lays hold of our interest in the first page, and sustains it to the end.'—Daily Review.

'Deserves to occupy a prominent and permanent place among Scottish works of imagination. . . . Not a dull page in the book; while not a paragraph will be skipped lest some of the finer touches should be missed.'—Kelso Chronicle.

'We have not read a fresher, livelier, or more wholesomely stimulating story for many a day.'—Kilmarnock Standard.

'As a type of the sound-hearted, high-spirited Scottish gentlewoman, who can sustain her dignity on a poor pittance, and who is tender and true without any pretence of high sentiment, Janet Nesbit is a fine portrait of a noble woman.'—N. B. Daily Mail.

'The central figure in the narrative is Miss Janet Nesbit, of Aldersyde, a young gentlewoman who is early called to a life of self-sacrifice. This she humbly accepts, working out the problem with so much sincerity and faithfulness that the grey morning is followed by a bright day.'—Christian Leader.

New Edition, in crown 8vo, cloth extra, with Six Illustrations in Chalk by TOM SCOTT, price reduced to 3s. 6d.; or in plainer binding, without Illustrations, price 2s. 6d.; paper boards, 2s.,

Carlowrie ; or, Among Lothian Folk. By ANNIE S. SWAN.

'A treat to the lovers of Scottish fiction, the scenery and local truth of the dialect and "modes of thought" are all that can be desired; and the book is no small addition to the literature which endeavours to depict a phase of country life fast passing away.'—Athenæum.

'Will certainly enhance the reputation of the authoress of "Aldersyde."'—Liverpool Mercury.

'The characters are sketched with more freedom and with more keenness also than those in "Aldersyde," and this comparison is just as severe a test as could be applied.'—Daily Review.

'The delineation of the house-mother, Mrs. Dalrymple, strikes us as being one of the very finest portraits to be found in the whole extent of our national literature of a clever, sunny-hearted, and utterly unselfish Scotchwoman of the rustic middle class.'—Kilmarnock Journal.

'The interest of the reader is enchained from first to last.'—The Christian.

'The book possesses a quiet idyllic charm which it is impossible to resist. . . . The breezy freshness and pervading refinement of the story will hardly fail to please all readers of simple tastes.'—Academy.

'"Carlowrie" is already one of the pronounced successes of the season. All the Scottish newspapers, with one characteristic exception, are delighted with this tale of the Lothians. That it is a study from the life, executed with the delicate insight that comes from loving sympathy, hardly admits of a doubt; and the delineation of the farmer's gentle wife—one of nature's true nobility—is a masterpiece of the purest pathos.'—Christian Leader.

'Of such stories as this—full of tender religious feeling, life-like characters, and graceful description—one cannot have too many.'—Literary World.

'A sweet idyl of rural life in a country farm.'—Southern Reporter.

'A healthy tone, and a Doric having the right twang in it.'—Fifeshire Journal.

'It is with choice taste, and an appropriateness rarely found in the inscription of a book, that Miss Swan dedicates her "Carlowrie" to the dear memory of her who made the sunshine of the home that was; and she may be well congratulated on her work as the book of the season.'—National Literary Journal.

'True to the life. . . . Interesting from beginning to end, and the reader must be hard to please who cannot find entertainment in what is at once a pleasant novel and a good book.'—Northern Whig.

'An episode of Midlothian life, so true in its local descriptions, so graphic in its character drawing, and so pure-spirited withal, that the most fastidious critic will fall in love with it. . . . Parents of taste and intelligence will be glad to put such a book as this into the hands of their children.'—Courant.

New and Revised Edition, crown 8vo, cloth extra, gilt edges, price 3s. 6d. ; or in plainer binding, 2s. 6d.,

Gertrude Ellerslie: A Story of Two Years.

By Mrs. MELDRUM.

'Will be read with keen pleasure on account of its being so true to life.'—Christian Union.

'A well-sustained story, abounding in varied interest, and full of clear character sketching; . . . fascinating book.'—Christian Leader.

'The book is one of unflagging interest, variety of scene, and numerous characters.'—Christian World.

'A handsome volume externally, and within most gracious. So long as we must have fiction, we hope women like Mrs. Meldrum will employ their pure hands and loving hearts therein. Personal interest is here illustrated by a charming story.'—Sword and Trowel.

'The story is simple, natural, realistic. The tone is thoroughly healthy, and shuns all that is maudlin or silly. The lessons taught are unexceptionable, and those who relish a good story well told, would be delighted with the book.'—Canada Presbyterian.

'There are persons who, in their superior kind of way, dismiss a novel as intolerable which breathes a religious spirit, and pointedly inculcates the lessons of evangelical faith and life. It is probably useless to restate the arguments by which a defence may be sustained of such works of fiction, but we would ask those who hold the unfriendly attitude we have indicated, to read with impartial mind the story before us. We shall be greatly surprised if the generous impulses and the high-toned spirit of the tale do not impress its readers, who cannot, at all events, fail to be profoundly interested and stirred by its pictures of varied life. The family portraiture of the various groups is vivid and striking. . . . The character of Gertude is very powerfully drawn. . . . The grouping is very artistic, and the details disclose an amount of careful observation and discriminating judgment which find expression at once simple and forcible in this most attractive story.'—Daily Review.

'Ought to find favour with a large circle of readers. It introduces us to a very large circle of characters, some of which are sketched with remarkable vividness. The tale, as such, is extremely entertaining, so that the interest never flags.'—Christian Monthly.

'The story has strong merits. The authoress is a woman of cultivated intellect, and endowed with strong sympathies for the poor. The plot of the novel is not a very intricate one, it possesses, however, a healthy tone. Some of the characters are exceedingly well drawn.'—Richmond and Ripon Chronicle.

'This is a story which will be welcomed by many, though it is written chiefly for thoughtful girls. The characters are drawn from the homes of our own day. We have met them, known them, and lived among them; but they are on this account none the less interesting—perhaps we like them the better that the scenes through which they move are familiar, and the life they live so like our own. The book, like all Mrs. Meldrum's books, has been written with an aim kept steadily in view—that of showing that one may possess all the world can give, but only divine love and fulness can satisfy a human heart. . . . The book will help and cheer weary folk; it will guide seeking ones, and counsel those who fear to ask for advice. And yet there is nothing dull, nothing wearisome in it. The motive and execution are both admirable.'—The Outlook.

cheap edition, paper 1s., cloth 1s. 6d.,

Ursula Vivian, the Sister Mother. By ANNIE S.
SWAN.

‘Admirably conceived, and well worked out.’—Scotsman.

‘The narrative of struggle and victory is well conceived and worked out.’—Liverpool Mercury.

‘This story is exceedingly well told, and it has a moral equally praiseworthy.’—Sword and Trowel.

‘Representing what life might and ought to be, in spite of adverse circumstances.’—The Christian.

‘Has for its heroine a plain English school-girl, who, under the influence of fiery trial, develops into a self-denying, self-reliant, and tender woman. The story also abounds with an earnest and helpful religious spirit, and is one of never-failing interest.’—Literary World.

‘A good and faithful character study; a type of a pure, good woman—not a woman whose goodness and virtue are oppressively prominent, but one whom we feel to be good, whose actions are those of flesh and blood, not devoid of weaknesses, not without some flaws, and whose nature, human as it is, is nevertheless true, fascinating, and endearing.’—Northern Whig.

‘Written in a quiet, unobtrusive style, the simplicity of which is charming, and yet the interest is well maintained throughout.’—Aberdeen Journal.

‘Ursula is a fine character, whom it would do elder girls good to study.’—Sunday School Chronicle.

‘A beautiful story of what a brave, determined, educated girl can do in fighting the battle of life for her family.’—Sheffield Independent.

‘Can it be right or kind to recommend a book when some of the results of its perusal are occasional tears rolling down one’s cheek? The fact is, that one forgets this is a story, and the entire Vivian family stand out before the reader as if he had seen and talked to them. The self-indulgent old gentleman; the patiently enduring wife; the four brothers, with their quiet, distinct characters; and Ursula, the spirited, bright, noble, resolute girl, all appear real persons to us. How, when within one short dark week both father and mother were taken away, Ursula set herself to become “a sister-mother,” and carried out her high resolve, readers must learn for themselves, and in so learning we promise them kindled hearts and admiring thoughts.’—Scottish Sabbath-School Teacher.

‘A very touching story, the pathetic features of which are made all the more effective by the sweetly simple style of the author. . . . The story is religious in sentiment, but there is nothing maudlin about its tone, which has a genuine and wholesome ring in it.’—Liverpool Courier.

‘One of the best stories for girls we have read for a long time.’—Perthshire Constitutional.

‘In some respects the most perfect story which its accomplished author has yet given to the world.’—Kilmarnock Standard.

‘A story of great interest, told with vivacity and power, and has not a dull page from beginning to end.’—Aberdeen Free Press.

By Still Waters: A Story for Quiet Hours. New and Cheaper Edition. By EDWARD GARRETT.

'We like this "Story for Quiet Hours" very much better than we have liked any of Mr. Garrett's recent tales; he has shaken himself free from the leaven of Puritanism, and is at his best—always pleasant and readable, sometimes giving utterance to a really fine and graceful thought, and showing plenty of dry humour.'—The Graphic.

'We have read many books by Edward Garrett, but none that has pleased us so well as this. It has more than pleased, it has charmed us. All through it runs a golden thread of spiritual wisdom that makes you linger as you read. The best character, drawn with great care, is Sarah Russell. We have all of us, we hope, met such good, kind, wise women who seem to be sent into the world to put things straight and lift everybody to a higher plane of existence.'—The Nonconformist.

'It possesses merits of a very sterling order. The book is a good one in every sense of the word. The author sets a high aim before him, and he achieves it. In Tibbie there is a grim humour closely allied to pathos underlying her queer epigrammatic sayings.'—Morning Post.

'The beauty of the language and the profusion of fine thoughts scattered throughout, constitute its chief charm.'—Dundee Advertiser.

'The volume is interspersed with some shrewd sayings.'—Daily News.

'Mr. Garrett is a novelist whose books it is always a pleasure to meet. His stories are full of quiet, penetrating observation. Few novelists photograph characters so beautiful and subtle as Sarah Russell's and Tibbie's, or envelope their tale in a like bower of tender, thoughtful love.'—Echo.

'Is full of good sense.'—Westminster Review.

'A natural, well-written, and deeply interesting story.'—Primitive Methodist World.

'The story is well and racily told; it is lit up with occasional gleams of humour, and, withal, with a better light still. It is a wholesome and a helpful book.'—Leeds Mercury.

'A fine combination of masculine vigour, spiritual insight, and racy humour. . . . To quite an extraordinary extent the volume abounds in sayings that are notable, both for the striking originality of their substance and their pointed style of expression.'—Christian Leader.

'We have received nothing of late better entitled to attention. . . . It is the fruit of robust, fearless thinking, and is brimful of quaint humour.'—Greenock Telegraph.

'Very well told, with much power of thought and breadth of sympathy, which is very pleasing to meet.'—Spectator.

'The characters are finely drawn. . . . Worth a legion of its contemporaries.'—Brechin Advertiser.

'A book to be read slowly and read again.'—British Messenger.

'A religious book in a good sense, and by no means bad reading from a literary point of view.'—Athenæum.

'Perfection of literary form, and vigour of thought. . . . The exposure of smug Pharisaism is executed with trenchant force. Let us hope the book will have the effect of lessening the number of the Pharisees. We expect it will make some of them very angry.'—Kilmarnock Standard.

Bits from Blinkbonny; or, Bell o' the Manse. A Tale of Scottish Village Life between 1841 and 1851. By JOHN STRATHESK. With Six Original Illustrations.

'The daily life in a thoroughly Scotch rural village is described in the most lifelike manner, and one feels a personal certainty of being able to recognise any of the people described if one met them. The homely but pretty illustrations place the country scenery before our actual vision.'—Athenæum.

'Altogether, "Bell" is an exquisitely careful and finished study. The book abounds in quaint touches of Scottish humour, delightful specimens of our vernacular language, incidents and anecdotes grave and gay.'—Scotsman.

'The effect is really delightful, and the blending of quiet humour and natural pathos in the volume makes it a positive refreshment to the spirit. . . . The account of Bell's courtship with the shamefaced bachelor, David Tait of Blackbrae, is delicious.'—Glasgow Daily Mail.

'If there are not so many characters introduced as in some of Sir Walter Scott's works, the characters have an individuality as pronounced as any of his, and the lights and shades of character are finished off with an equal degree of care and truthfulness.'—Huntly Express.

'Bell is the heroine of the book, and a well-drawn character she is, with her quaint ways, her happy expedients, her clever but never shrewish tongue, her simple yet strong fidelity to the family she served, and her wise, droll, and pithy sayings. Dan Corbett, the one-eyed smuggler, poacher, molecatcher, and a dozen other things, ranks next to Bell as a finished portraiture.'—Chambers's Journal.

'Piquant and charming in its very simplicity. Enlivened in almost every page by bits of genuine Scottish humour.'—Ayr Advertiser.

'The chapter treating of "Wee Nellie" comes closer home in its power of stirring the heart than anything we have seen since the appearance of Dr. John Brown's "Rab and his Friends." The illustrations are true works of art.'—Brechin Advertiser.

'A story of homely Scotch life, pleasant and amusing. The dialect is well managed and faithful without being overdone.'—The Graphic.

'Scattered throughout the volume are several graphic sketches of village characters, including Gavin Sinclair, the beadle and gravedigger, an old worthy descended from John Brown of Priesthill, the covenanting martyr, Dan Corbett, the village poacher, etc.'—Edinburgh Courant.

'Pictures penned. . . . "Bell" is simply delightful. We defy any one to read it without a sense of real enjoyment.'—The Literary World.

'We have never seen Scottish village life better described.'—Montrose Review.

'A finely told story, which, for interest, excels not a few of our novels. A splendid study.'—Hawick Advertiser.

'The author describes the village life of Scotland with the fidelity and grace of Wilkie. We should have enjoyed hearing Burns read them to 'Tam o' Shanter over the last gill.'—Sheffield Independent.

'The Laird's Secret.' By JANE H. JAMIESON.

'To intelligent readers there is a charm in so genuine a story of modern life and thought.'—Athenæum.

'It is long since we have read an equally healthy, pure, and bracing story. The scene is laid in a country parish near Edinburgh. Mr. Scott, the young "Laird," is vigorously drawn, and the handsome and attractive Dr. Blackburn is a careful study of character. There are also many glimpses of humble Scottish life throughout the book, which attest the able hand of the writer. It is emphatically good, alike as regards style and tone.'—British Quarterly Review.

'The three girls are fresh and breezy as the heathery hills around them, and many of the situations they figure in are powerfully exciting. Once open the book, and you cannot lay it down till you have followed the fortunes of the three sisters to the close.'—Court Journal.

'Exhibits a clear insight into human nature.'—Public Opinion.

'There is some love-making in the story, and the doings of all the people in a Scottish village near Edinburgh are minutely chronicled with a simple-hearted jubilation at the superiority of all things Scotch. The plot mainly turns on the machinations of the Popish factor, who is, of course, outwitted in the end.'—Daily News.

'Deeply interesting from beginning to end.'—Literary World.

'A delightful story well told.'—Christian World.

'The characters are all graphically sketched, old Robbie Gourlay, Sir John Maitland, and the handsome and attractive Dr. Blackburn especially so.'—Glasgow Herald.

'Readers of healthy fiction will welcome a new edition.'—Scotsman.

'We will heartily welcome a new edition of "The Laird's Secret."'—English Churchman.

'A first-rate story. The characters are boldly and truthfully sketched; . . . makes a most tempting prize or gift-book.'—Perthshire Constitutional.

'The story is not without pathetic touches, just as the happiest life is not free from crosses; but the general tone is sprightly and exhilarating.'—Daily Review.

'Pervaded by a fresh, pure, and healthy tone, which renders it delightful reading.'—Northern Whig.

'Mr. Scott, the young laird, and Dr. Blackburn are sharply cut as silhouettes, and will live in our literature. . . . An excellent work, cleverly conceived, and showing unusual power.'—Sheffield Telegraph.

'A very fascinating tale; worth a hundred of the æsthetic and dolorously tragical volumes, in which there is often so much fine writing associated with mean sentiment.'—Sheffield Independent.

'Herein are combined a story of real life interest, characters which are well drawn and fascinating, and adequate though not elaborate descriptions of scenes and associations in rural Scotland; and while "The Laird's Secret," with its love-making and love troubles, and its spice of sensationalism, must have charms for readers in general, the quaint Doric speech of some of the personages will endow the book with special attractions in Scottish eyes.'—Liverpool Courier.

A Divided House: A Study from Life. By ANNIE S. SWAN.

'The author of "Aldersyde" and "Carlowrie" will lose nothing in reputation by her new story, "A Divided House." It professes to be a study from real life, and bears strong internal evidence that it is so, and that it is a faithful study. It is well written, in a quiet but clear and effective style. Its interest owes nothing to the sensational element, dealing as it does with domestic loves and trials, with the mistakes and follies of human weakness, followed by the chastening of consequent misfortune, and the final triumph of religious faith and patient human valour. The principal characters are admirably portrayed, and there is great delicacy of touch in the delineation of the female characters, the weak and erring, but finally purified and ennobled, wife of Richard Blake, and his sweet and almost perfect cousin Mary Osborne. The religious element in the story is essential to the plan, and to the development of the characters, and is always justly subordinated to the leading purpose of the book, never degenerating into canting talk, as is too often the case with books of this class. "A Divided House" may be heartily recommended to all lovers of pure wholesome fiction.'—Scotsman.

'There is nothing striking in plot or incident, the events related in the narrative being all such as we see happening around us every day; . . . but gracefully told, and in many passages full of quiet pathos. The moral intended to be taught is, of course, the chastening and purifying influence of adversity on a worldly mind, and the need for mutual patience and forbearance in wedded life.'—Aberdeen Journal.

'Its quiet, human touches give us an almost personal interest in the personages of the story. Indeed, as might be expected from the author's peculiar faculty for limning home life, the domestic passages which abound throughout the book are the most attractive.'—Dundee Advertiser.

'The present tale is one of deep interest. The title is derived from the result of the marriage of a young city merchant with the daughter of a country squire with highly fashionable connections. The various points, such as "The Dawn of Love," "Across the Rubicon," and "Taking up the Cross," being worked out with unmistakeable power. There is a good deal of subtle analysis of character in the story, which from the change of theme, as compared with her previous books, reveals a variety of power on the part of the novelist, and holds out the prospect of other good work from the same pen. The whole book is full of quiet, true power.'—Liverpool Mercury.

'This story is told with the same directness and simplicity which characterize Miss Swan's previous works, and we are sure that those to whom she has in them already afforded pleasure and instruction, will not be disappointed when they turn to the pages of "A Divided House."'—Literary World.

'Full of pathetic feeling and deep insight into human nature.'—Warrington Guardian.

'Full of those quiet, quaint, and unexpected touches of genius which have made her other stories so popular, and the tone that runs through the whole of this graceful story of struggle and triumph is of the highest and most true-hearted.'—Sheffield Independent.

Small crown 8vo, with Frontispiece, paper cover, 1s.; cloth, 1s. 6d.,

A Door of Hope. By JANE T. STODDART.

'A pretty story is "A Door of Hope." . . . It has genuine interest, and is thoroughly healthy.'—Scotsman.

'Take the trouble to get the book and read it.'—Glasgow Herald.

'A bright and healthful story of Scotch people in England.'—Christian Herald.

'The writer has not only produced a pleasant, well-written, and interesting story, but has woven into it the great principles of religion in an unobtrusive and natural manner.'—People's Journal.

'The story is full of incident, with which high teaching is interwoven.'—British Weekly.

'This is a very ably written story.'—Airdrie Advertiser.

'A good moral tone runs through the volume, and, as we have read it from beginning to end, we have no hesitancy in recommending it as suitable for young people.'—Home and School, Toronto.

'This is a marvellous book, and proclaims the writer to possess great literary powers, which may yet gain for her a distinguished place among the literary fraternity.'—Presbyterian Messenger.

'We have read it with great interest, and have found it worthy of high commendation. "A Door of Hope" is a good title for a good book.'—Kelso Mail.

'In the true sense of the word, this is a popular little work.'—Canada Presbyterian.

'The interest of the story is well sustained throughout.'—Dundee Courier.

'Alike as regards quality and quantity, it is splendid value for the money. It has the further charm of not likely to be thrown aside after being once read. Those who go over it once will find fresh thoughts awakened on a second reading.'—Huntly Express.

'The tale is well constructed, and told with much feeling.'—Perthshire Constitutional.

'Merits high praise for originality of ideas, combined with probability, the lack of which renders many books unreadable. "A Door of Hope" will take its place with the highest class of modern literature.'—Dublin Evening Mail.

'The chief characters in the book are evidently life studies, and exceedingly well drawn, the individuality of each being full and striking, as well as perfectly preserved throughout the story. No healthier, pleasanter reading could be put in the hands of young people.'—Aberdeen Free Press.

'We have nothing but praise for the work, which we hope may meet with such a reception as will encourage its talented young authoress to favour the public with other books. The high moral and spiritual tone which pervades "A Door of Hope" will open the doors of every Christian household to her succeeding books, and will make her not only a successful writer, but a power for good.'—Kelso Chronicle.

'Many beautiful passages scattered throughout the volume would well bear quotation did space permit. The chapter entitled "To the West, Three Gates," reveals a reserve of power, and a distinct ray of genius.'—Christian Leader.

'Our readers will have no difficulty in identifying the watering-place which is the scene of this story, although it is called Westerley-on-Sea. The book tells as pretty a little love story, or rather double love story, as we have read for a very long time. The author's object is unpretending; but she has produced an interesting, wholesome, and lifelike story.'—Bristol Mercury.

BY THE AUTHOR OF 'BITS FROM BLINKBONNY.'

Extra crown 8vo, elegantly bound, cloth, gilt, price 5s.,

The 'COME' and 'GO' Family Text-Book; containing a 'COME' and 'Go' Text for every Day in the Year, also spaces for Births, Marriages, and Deaths.

'The author of "Bits from Blinkbonny" has succeeded in devising a genuine novelty—a remarkably handsome small quarto, with a dainty coloured border on each page. "The 'COME' and 'Go' Family Text-Book" is composed of Scripture passages, each day having a couple, in the first of which the word "Come" has a leading function, while in the second the word "Go" is no less prominent. A real teaching power is secured by the quaint arrangement, which is quite the reverse of mechanical. The compilation has been executed "with brains" and also with spiritual insight.'—Glasgow Daily Mail.

'A novel idea in books of the nature of calendars has been carried out in this elegant volume. No one could desire a more suitable framework for the coming and going of his friends.'—Scotsman.

'As neat and elegant a book of Scripture quotations as has yet appeared. A glance through the collection of texts containing the words "Come" and "Go" respectively,—given for each day in the year,—conveys the idea that these two little words are set in the most pathetic and grandest passages in Holy Writ. Most of the available space is intended for the Register of Births, Marriages, and Deaths, and thus the book may become a well-prized register of kindred and friends.'—Scottish Leader.

'A beautiful book both outside and in, and does credit to both compiler and publisher. In the way of a text-book it is quite a novelty. Its specialty is that the quotations from Scripture are those in which the words "Come" or "Go" are found, and one from each set is placed alongside the dates of the month, and surrounded by pretty floral wreaths. Each month is also introduced by a suitable quotation in which both words occur, and also by passages numbering the month, and appropriately describing it. Under each date there are lines for the entry not only of Births, but also of Marriages and Deaths. No one can examine the book without admiring it, and being amazed at the rich portions of Scripture which have been brought together under the principle employed.'—Aberdeen Journal.

New Edition, small crown 8vo, cloth gilt, with numerous Illustrations, price 2s.; in cheaper bindings, 1s. 6d. and 1s.,

Jock Halliday, A Grassmarket Hero; or, Sketches of Life and Character in an Old City Parish. By ROBINA F.
HARDY, Author of 'Nannette's New Shoes,' etc.

'The narrative is swift and flowing, lit up with flashes of humour, and also with pathetic touches that are equally true.'—Christian Leader.

'Charmingly got up. . . . Sure to have an influence for good over the many readers which the book certainly deserves to have.'—Daily Free Press.

'A very sweet little story. . . . A simple idyl of everyday life, naturally and pathetically told.'—Scotsman.

'Fitted to do good service alike in connection with temperance and general mission-work.'—British Messenger.

'Pleasing and natural; . . . well rewards perusal.'—Inverness Courier.

'A delightful Edinburgh story.'—Liverpool Mercury.

'A good stock of healthy, mischief-making, but generous good-nature about the lad. . . . He is the very soul of tenderness to the little blind girl.'—United Presbyterian Juvenile Missionary Magazine.

'Full of lights and shadows, queer bits, laughter-forcing bits, moving bits. . . . Difficult to lay down.'—S.S. Teachers' Magazine.

'Written with much ability and feeling.'—Christian World.

'A fascinating story of humble life.'—Dundee Advertiser.

'A very effective story.'—Haddington Courier.

'Will assuredly take its place beside the productions of the author of "Rab and his Friends," and the tender and touching tales of Professor Wilson.'—Brechin Advertiser.

'A tender, spirited story of mission-work among the slums.'—Sunday School Chronicle.

'A capitably written sketch of Scottish city life among the humbler classes.'—Christian.

'The story is an incident of city mission-work, and it is capitably told. It is a book which should find a place in every Sunday school or temperance library.'—Southern Reporter.

'The narrative, though plain and unadorned, will be found of great interest, especially on the part of those who appreciate Scottish life and character in its more homely phases.'—Northern Whig.

'A real story—one that interests and, in many of its pages, amuses, and therefore the moral is not obtruded on notice; but its moral is of the best. . . . We never saw a better of its kind.'—Arbroath Guide.

'Altogether, the book is one which excites the deepest interest, and conveys moral in every chapter.'—Derry Sentinel.

'Have no hesitation in commending, not only to those who love a good and racy-told tale, but to those who are sometimes puzzled to know what sort of a gift-book to get for a young friend.'—Newcastle Weekly Chronicle.

'A good sketch of one of those sterling characters, who, in spite of their surroundings, develop into useful members of society, spreading wholesome influence around them in some of the least reputable quarters of our great cities.'—Aberdeen Journal.

'The pages are full of pen portraits, which must have been drawn from nature. Mission-work, as presented to us in this little volume, means very much more than a good story. The Christian heart, yearning over the fallen and lost, will find in it much to enjoy and much to learn. We could not conceive of any book more suitable for a prize, or better fitted to place temperance teaching in its proper niche. Among the illustrations are some choice bits of Edinburgh scenery.'—Band of Hope Review.

EXTRACTS FROM TESTIMONIALS.

From Mrs. M. DALTON, Manor Farm, Nocton, July 31st, 1883.

I have given your Butter Colour a fair trial, and can safely say it is the best and most economical preparation for colouring butter that I ever saw, giving it a splendid colour without colouring the butter-milk, and being perfectly tasteless.

From S. PILLEY, Esq., Marston, Grantham, June 20th, 1885.

I am pleased to inform you that after trying your Butter Colour for the last year I have found it the best preparation I have ever used, and can strongly recommend it. It imparts to the Butter a beautiful bright uniform colour, and does not affect the butter-milk.

Mrs. ABBEY, Checkendon Rectory, Reading, March 2nd, 1886.

Says—"She likes it better than any Colouring she has ever used."

From Mr. R. GALLIER, Chemist, Horsham.

GENTLEMEN,—A lady tells me that out of four different preparations yours was the only one that gave a satisfactory result.

From Mrs. CLARKE, Denmead, Cosham, Hants, May 6th, 1886.

Please oblige Mrs. Clarke by sending to her at the enclosed address box of Butter Powder, for which order for 2s. 6d. is enclosed. Mrs. C. was much pleased with the Powder and Colouring.

The Safest Dip for Lambs ! The Best Wool-growing Dip !

---

THE GLYCERINE DIP.

(Non-poisonous.)

It is a certain Cure for SCAB, and effectually Eradicates TICKS, LICE, MAGGOTS, and all PARASITES infesting the Skins of Sheep, Cattle & other Animals.

In addition to "GLYCERINE," this DIP contains other Organic Compounds that add to its great emollient and stimulating, or Wool Growing Qualities; it greatly improves the quality and stimulates the growth of the Wool from the day on which the sheep are dipped, thereby the Fleece is from one to three pounds heavier than when the Sheep are not dipped at all, or when Caustic preparations are used, and the value of Wool is also increased from a penny to three-pence per pound.

SPECIALLY USEFUL AS A DRESSING.

OX WARBLE and GAD FLIES.—Specially prepared, and is an infallible Specific, for preventing attacks of the Bot or Ox Warble Fly and Gad Fly, Destroys them and the Warble Maggot, Heals the Wounds quickly, and restores the Skin to its natural condition.

CATTLE.—For Cows, Calves, and Store Cattle when stalled, it is specially useful in Destroying Lice and Parasites, and making the Skin clean and healthy.

HORSES.—Cures Cracked Heels, Grease, Canker, Mange, Harness Galls, Destroying Lice, &c., cleanses the Skin from Scurf, and improves the condition of the Coat.

DOGS.—Cures Mange, Eczema or Red Mange, and other Skin Diseases, and improves their coats, and is much more economical and effective than any Dog Soaps or other Dressings.

AS A DISINFECTANT.—For Stables, Dog Kennels, Fowl Houses, &c., it is invaluable.
